Arvid Nordquist's Environmental Policy

Arvid Nordquist operates in the food industry and thus has a major environmental impact through the production of food and beverages. We work actively to reduce the environmental impact of our products, distribution and our own operations. We follow applicable environmental legislation and other requirements, but our goal is to exceed such legislation, regulations and other provisions.

We undertake to constantly improve our environmental work and have set targets for the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions, an increased proportion of certified goods in our range and monitoring of our major suppliers with regard to sustainability.

We measure and follow-up our environmental and sustainability work by making annual climate calculations for our operations and our products. We also monitor the effect our focus on certified products has, and how this range helps to reduce emissions and the consumption of natural resources and input goods.

Through our environmental policy, our targets and our code of conduct, we inform all relevant stakeholders about the environment-related work of our business. We also place environmental demands on our business contacts, for example suppliers and transport companies, with a view to cutting their environment impact.

We train our staff on how they can apply more environmental consideration to their everyday work. In addition, we wish to encourage employees to maintain a high level of environmental awareness, and to come up with proposals for environmental improvement measures. To reduce our own impact, we try to minimise the number of unnecessary business trips. We have also developed an effective recycling system, and we strive to use ecolabelled products in our operations and choose environmentally aware alternatives where possible.
